CREW LEADERS MEETING.

CHECK WITH ALL YOUR CREW FOR NEEDS BEFORE BEDTIME.

How do you make a working unit out of your crew?

1. Realize the power of working with "people".

Be a people-helper. Here's how:

- Don't try to do the job alone.
Some leaders, either unable to recruit or unwilling to share, succeed only in wearing themselves out in the achievement of a mediocre result.
- Keep goals clearly in sight.
A good leader keeps the aims and objectives dusted and shined. Just as important, he helps his people to see the small steps by which they can be achieved.
- Set deadlines.
In the press of many things in every day the volunteer responsibility is vulnerable to postponement unless it has a deadline.
- See that your people understand their jobs and where they fit.
Good management is good teaching. Good communications on the job requirements and how this relates to other jobs.
- Remember to call the plays.
Most people wait for the leader to call the signals. The person whose inactivity may be disappointing to you may be waiting for you to call the play.
- Every person should receive an assignment in each activity.
More volunteers are lost by inactivity (not being put to work). It is therefore vital to be sure that all members get an assignment for completion.
- Maintain frequent and regular contact.
Keep in touch. Use all media: Personal visits, the mail, the phone.
- Keep your people informed. The player deserves to know the score. Make frequent occasions to show graphically the status of progress.
- See that your people taste success.
No one will continue long without it. Show progress. People like to belong to a winning team.
- Make friends of your volunteers.
The successful leader develops a warm, human relationship that goes far beyond the formal organizational relationship. Much of the world's work and commerce is carried on between friends. People work for causes and organization, it is true. But people also work for other people.
- Build team spirit and demonstrate your own team play.
The rugged individualist does organizations like ours very little good. They are usually remembered only because they rocked the boat.

- Develop friendly rivalry.

The competitive urge can be a great force in any organization. Like the rooster who rolled an ostrich egg into his yard to show the hens what others were doing -- hoist a challenge now and then.

- Give deserved recognition.

Saying, "Well done" is the leader's responsibility. Remember that individual recognition is much more effective than group recognition. The word "deserved" is important. The leader who paints it with too broad a brush nullifies its value.

- Have the courage to face trouble.

Occasionally someone needs to be replaced or retired. It is easy to make the mistake of thinking that we are honoring the inactive person by retaining them in an assistant role. But we do not honor anyone by betraying the group.

- Remember that any organization is the mirror of its own leadership.

It will reflect your attitude and your spirit. You must show that you expect everyone to do their jobs and you will remember that the indispensable quality of enthusiasm is so contagious that it can be transmitted through the eye and the voice.

SOME SPIRITUAL GOALS FOR TREKS

1. To enjoy study and worship in majestic surroundings.
2. To emphasize the beauty and harmony of God's handiwork.
3. To give a taste of a more vigorous life. We are often unsuited for the life of Jesus and the apostles. We are spoiled by our luxuries.
4. To teach us to meet challenges and difficulties. We are prone to give up on hard projects. Treks prove to ourselves that we can do more than we think we can.
5. To show us our limitations. Some of us think we can do anything. Treks are humbling and teach self-reliance plus God-reliance.
6. To help us realize that we have been blessed with many luxuries.
7. To introduce the beauties of a more simple life. Emphasize the dangers of affluence.
8. To teach us to work together in fellowship. The intimate relationships of a trek parallel those in the church. Group welfare often depends on me.
9. To promote development of close friendships with other Christians.
10. To teach us to bear our own load in life and be prepared to share other's burdens when necessary.
11. To de-emphasize competition and emphasize setting personal goals rather than competitive ones.
12. To taste the unique flavor of the wilderness. God has often used the wilderness to train His people.

SPECIAL NOTES

MAKE ME NEW, LORD JESUS

Make me new, Lord Jesus
Make me new,
For it seems that in so many ways
I'm not enough like you,
Take this weary vessel I am in and
mold me once again,
Take my life,
Take my spirit,
Make me new.

LITTLE BY LITTLE

Little by little,
One step at a time.
He's changing our hearts,
And renewing our minds.
Teaching us how to be patient and kind.
Little by little,
One step at a time.

FAITH

Without faith it's impossible, it's impossible,
It's impossible to please God.
He who comes to God must believe that He is
And He rewards those who seek Him.

All things are possible, all things are possible,
All things are possible, just believe:
That God will do everything that he says He will do
And He rewards those who seek Him.

I'VE GOT CONFIDENCE

I've got confidence
God is gonna see me through.
No matter what the case may be
Cause I've got confidence
God is gonna see me through.
No matter what the case may be.
